

Oranjestad goes from orange to green this Saturday night!

It is summer in the northern hemisphere, and that includes Aruba too, where the weather and club action gets even hotter than usual! Heineken General Manager Patrick Melchior and Maurice Neme of I Love Muzika, which organizes various fun events for youth announced that this Saturday night, July 14, Oranjestad will become “Green City” where music, fun, Heineken beer and green wristbands rule!

From 10 PM until the closing time, five clubs close to the bus terminal area, Oranjestad’s Party Central section of town, will offer dancing and listening to great bands, no entrance fee and various special deals on Heineken Beer, possibly by the bucket or yard. To take advantage of this weekend of fantastic fun, one need only purchase a green wristband at the entrance of any of the clubs or pre-purchase at Heineken Aruba, Spare Time, Underground Cycles, Bula Surf Shop, Bahia or Mambo Jambo for a modest ten Aruban florins ($5.60.)

Maurice Neme reports there will be (count ‘em!) TWENTY DJ’s, spinning music through the night. These will include special guests DJ Marcello from Holland, DJ Outkast from Sint Maarten and DJ Yeimy, winner of the Heineken DJ competition 2006, featured at Mr. Conga, located on the second level of the renovated bus terminal, for a VIP pre-party on Saturday night. Different music styles will prevail at each club. Heineken home base of Bahia will feature House and Urban Raggae with live band Euphoria, and Mambo Jambo, famous for the Latin beat, has Single’s Night with Marisela and Virus. Kildare’s Irish Bar features the hits of U2, Police and others of that ilk with Lotus, and the Mexican Carlos n’ Charlie’s will be the place for wild and crazy fun and games and Heineken by the yard. Those wearing the “Green City” wristband can stroll from club to club, enjoying the music and specials as they please.

The “Green City” weekend” will continue on Sunday with DJ Theo at Moomba Beach Bar and Restaurant in Palm Beach from 3:00 to 6:00 PM and a DJ Jam at Karma in the Aventura Mall Sunday night, which is also local price night for sushi at RA.

Heineken and I Love Muzika invite you to the first of many hot summer events, part of the new plan that replaces the Heineken Musicfest of the last seventeen years. There will be more music and excitement in August with the Heineken Caribbean Sea Jazz Festival, with other surprises through the season as well.
